

BIOGRAPHY OF ROBERT GOLDENKOFF

Robert Goldenkoff has over 20 years of program evaluation experience with the U.S. Government Accountability Office. Currently he is a director on GAO's Strategic Issues team where he is responsible for reviewing the decennial census and other federal statistical programs, as well as governmentwide human capital reforms. Prior research areas have included transportation security, combating human trafficking, and federal statistical programs. He is the co-author of Federal Jobs: The Ultimate Guide (Arco), and his articles on management, science policy, and other subjects have been published in Technology Review, Government Executive, Policy Studies Journal, and Public Administration Review. Most recently, he contributed a chapter on using focus group research to the Handbook of Practical Program Evaluation (Jossey-Bass). He received his B.A. (political science) and MPA degrees from the George Washington University, and was a Presidential Management Fellow.